To Supplement Contributory Plan

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister MacEachen announced today a $30-amonth supplementary to old age pensions for those who won't qualify for benefits of the contribu-tory Canada Pension Plan. It will guarantee them a minimum income of $105 a month.

He informed the Common that legislation to authorize the supplement will be placed before the House when Parlia-ment resumes after a summer plement is estimated at $225,-000,000 at the start. But since it applies only to those who will not benefit from the Canada Pension Plan it will disappear after a time.

Mr. MacEachen may have dropped a hint of higher taxes by adding that "the revenues measures that will be needed to meet the burden which these supplementary benefits will place on our national finances are also being considered."

There now are more than 1,000,000 persons 69 or over who receive the flat $75-a-month old

WILL INCREASE Benefits from the Canada Pension Plan start next Jan. 1 but only those who have made contributions. Benefits gradually increase in accordance with years of contributions. Mr. MacEachen said the pen sion supplement is being de vised with the Canada and Que-bec pension plans in mind "for e people who are not and not-because of age-be able to take advantage of the

Girl Escapes, Killer Hunted

CHICAGO—Eight student nurses were slaughtered in their town house dormitory early today in what Coroner Andrew Toman called "the crime of the cen-

They were killed methodically, one at a time, by a blond man during a 21/2-hour horror orgy. Some were strangled, some shot and some knifed,

They were partially clothed and apparently sexu-ually molested. The rooms were looted.

One of the young women in the dormitory escaped after the killer's departure to tell the story to police.

Police pieced the story together thus: ● About 12:30 a.m. a young man entered the nurses town house by climbing through a rear window of the first floor. Carazon Amurao, 23, an exchange Filipino nurse, and another nurse confronted him. Carrying a gun in one hand and knife in the other, he made them go into another room and lie on the floor. He bound and gagged them with strips torn from a sheet.

 Sometime later two more student nurses entered the house The intruder brought them to the same room and bound and gagged them.

• Still later, another girl returned from a date and then tw more returned. All were taken to the room and gagged and tied. • The man finally had nine young women in the room and then began taking them away one at a time.

During one of his absences. Miss Amurao managed to roll under a bed. During the night of horror she was unable to loosen her bonds.

About 6 a.m. when all became quiet, she came out from ing units along the River under the bed, ran into another bedroom and climbed out on the Jordan and shot down a window ledge, screaming hysterically.

• Judy Dykton, a student in a nearby townhouse, saw Miss fight over Amurao and heard her screams and ran to notify the house the Israeli government mother in her townhouse.

Some Study Needed

FIRST PUBLIC RUMBLING OF because Parliament was dissolved. American discontent with the foreign ownership provisions in the Bank Act amendments proposed by Finance Minister Sharp has come from the New York Times.

The Times said editorially this week that "the heavy hand of nationalism is clearly visible" in the limitations on the growth of any Canadian bank that comes under the control of foreign investors and the prohibition on any one foreign bank owning more than 10 per cent of a Canadian bank.

The limitation on growth, as the Times notes, is aimed specifically at the Mercantile Bank of Canada which is wholly-owned by the First National City Bank of New York. Mr. Sharp's bill provides that Mercantile may not exceed $200 millions in its assets and liabilities and that it must divest itself of anything over that limit by Dec. 31 next year on penalty of a fine of $500 a day.

The crux of the situation is that the Americans - both through bank representations and, according to former finance minister Mr. Walter Gordon, diplomatic pressure have sought to have this section of the amendment dropped on the grounds that it is discriminatory retroactive legislation. And on the face of it the amendment is just that, since Mercantile's assets and liabilities had passed the $200 millions limit early last fall and by Oct. 31 had reached $223 millions.

Offsetting the retroactive legis lation argument to a degree is the claim by Mr. Gordon that Mercantile and its parent New York bank were given full warning a year earlier that a limitation on its growth would be proposed in the amendment to the Bank Act introduced by Mr. Gordon but not passed considerable responsibility for

Mr. Sharp's proposal is substantially the same as the earlier one put forward by Mr. Gordon.

The bank chose to ignore this warning on the grounds that until legislation was actually passed it was within its legal rights to continue to build its assets. And the question that must be answered is whether Mr. Gordon's warning has any real standing.

Certainly, as even the New York Times admits, there must be effective safeguards against foreign control of such vital Canadian financial institutions as the chartered banks. But there is a growing body of opinion in Canadian financial circles that an attempt to penalize the Mercantile Bank by retroactive legislation, and despite Mr. Gordon's warning, would be bad business for this country. The possibility of countermeasures has to be kept in mind, as the Times warned when it said: "Exercise of a little imagination and moderation to insure Canadian control would remove the threat of dangerous and unhealthy retaliation against Canadian banks operating in the United States which the present proposal could incite."

The Times has unfortunately exacerbated the situation by also claiming that the Bank Act amendments would require the New York bank to divest itself of 75 per cent of its interest in the Mercantile. In fact, the amendment specifically exempts this particular situation and applies only to future acquisitions. But the other part of the argument is persuasive and it is apparent that Parliament will have to give careful consideration to both the fairness and the wisdom of imposing punitive retroactive legislation of this type.

Noggins, in a travel agency to-day she was arranging a lengthy

'I figger we might as well use our money while it's worth somethink," she explained. "Besides, like the gover'mint says, it's the patriotic thing to do. Pearson 'as set us a good example by raisin' wages and perduction costs all along the line. Oh, I tell you 'e's a great diplomat, our Mike. Yes, 'e wins every argument by givin' the other side everythink they ask. That takes courage.

"Poor old Sharp is throwin' water on the fire of inflation and yells fer 'elp and Mike rushes up with a bucket of gasoline kindly supplied by the Quebec long-shoremen. And then Larry Mackenzie, a sturdy Liberal always ready to rescue gover mint that put 'im in the ate, throws a stick of dynamite into the St. Lawrence Seaway for good sure, though it wasn't exactly what intended.

No Sense of Humor

"The railways will get the same treatment. Everybody'll get it and so they should in this rich country. Why, sure, it can well afford a miserable little wage increase of only 30 per cent or so, and if the Economic Council is sufferin' a violent fit of hysterics wot do you expect: Economists have no sense

"All the country is satisfied, except Sharp who 'as to pay the bills. It would be a cinch to manage the treasury, says Sharp, if it wasn't fer the gover'mint. I 'ave nothink to fear but my loyal colleagues. I 'ave no problem but the Canadian people who want more spendin' and less taxes, 'igher wages and lower prices, sound money and bigger debts. If they think they're goin' to make me prime minister some day, says Sharp,

"But Pearson 'as bin misunderstood from the start. The wage increases ordered by the gover mint, 'e says, is only in a few very special cases and no one else should imitate 'em. Like Uncle 'Erbert said when 'e finally married one of his girl friends and made an honest woman out of 'er, this isn't to be taken as a precedent, but 'e was forced to marry all of 'em in the end before a preacher and a shotgun.

Kick in Proper Place

"Well, the western Liberals decided they've 'ad enough and called their own convention at Saskatoon to re-unify the party with a swift kick in the proper place. They weren't against the place. They weren't against gover'mint, of course, only its policies. We see nothink wrong with the cabinet, says Thatcher, except the men in it and wot they do. We're devoted as we can be to Pearson and merely seek to change 'is character. We're determined to stay in party, pervided that Walter Gordon is politely invited out.

"So Gordon welcomes the prairie revolt with a brave ollow cheer because it proved that Liberalism enjoys free-dom for every kind of opinion if it's the same as 'is own, and 'e started writin' another book called The Winning of the West, a fairy tale of sheer fantasy fer tiny tots. Liquor and Prairie Indian

By JAMES H. GRAY from Calgary

A HUNDRED years ago it was the fur traders of Montana who were de-bauching the Indians with rot-gut whisky.

Today the process seems to be repeat-ing itself but by government enter-prises selling the Indians the finest booze money can buy. A third of Canada's Indians, 75,000 of them, live in the prairie provinces, mainly on servations. Since war, civil rights r e servations.

Change in the second second second second for Indians has been mainly equated with giving Indians legal access to liquor. Alberta became the last provin to lift the barriers against Indians this

And how are the Indians doing? .In Kenora, near the Manitoba border, police magistrate has asserted that there is a reign of anarchy on the reserves. He blames contact with white people, booze, and welfare.

In Winnipeg, the authorities have erected a barricade to close off a cross-walk across Main Street at Logan Avenue. The barricade is to prevent Indians from spilling out of their favorities the barricade on the city's pub into the heavy traffic on the city's lest thoroughfare.

In Saskatchewan, Premier Thatcher expressed public disappointment at the lack of co-operation the government was getting from the Indians in its efforts on their behalf. The government, he said, was bending over backwards to help them but few of them were interested in improving their lot. In Calgary, a lot of Indians enjoy their new freedom of access to alcoholic beverages by making it a full-time occupation. From opening hour of the beer pariors to closing hour, they circulate from pub to pub in east Calgary. And not only in Calgary. From Slave Lake to Fort Mended Alberts. Slave Lake to Fort Macleod, Alberta ans camp on the door steps waiting for beer parlors to open in the mornings

Cold-Cure

All across the prairies, Indian hangovers get the cold-cure in city jails. The police pick up the drunken Indians wherever they fall, and they get the shortest shrift possible in the police courts as they take the normal 10-day penalty for drunkenness.

Is jail a deterrent? According to the Kenora magistrate, the reverse is true. Young Indians are happy in correctional institutions. One wrote to his friends urging them to get caught breaking summer cottages so that they could join him in the reform school.

The simple fact is this: There are more amenities of life in most jails than there are on many reservations. For many Indians, jail life is almost like living in a luxury hotel.

It is true, of course, that only a minority of Indians are involved in the debauchery. None has the resources needed to continue drinking for very long. The trouble Indians have is that they are too gregarious. No Indian goes anywhere alone, if he can go with seven or eight others. So one thirsty Indian may trail a half a dozen friends along with him and all can wind up drunk. with him and all can wind up drunk.

What is to be done? In addition to drinking in pubs, the Indians have also discovered they can buy beer by the case at the liquor stores. This creates a worse situation. Indians with a case of beer will tend to go looking for friends with which to drink. The last place he can go is home, if he lives on a reserve. The alternative is to drink in a back alley, a car or in a park, all of which can lead to trouble. It is this situation which has convinced some dedicated friends of the Indians that the bars against booze on the reserves should be lifted.

The Federal Government, which provides most of the Indian drinking ney with its pensions, children's wances and welfare subsidies, is death against liquor on the reserves.

Drinking Baby Bonus

"Here," Ottawa says to the Indians, Europe for holding off both the Soviet Union and Gaullist France. "is your baby bonus. Go and get drunk, but don't do it around here!"

If, as the Germans appear to think, the overriding power of the Christian Democrats in the Federal Republic is So Indians, with a bottle of whisky or case of beer, have to get it polished off broken, we are witnessing another and before they return to the reserve, which increases their in-town drinking, and European affairs. We are witnessing a

Permitting Indians to drink at home might create more problems than it would cure. But at least it would tend to keep Indian women out of pubs and off the streets of the cities. Skyrocketing illegitimacy among Indians is probably as serious a problem as drunk

Here again, Montana history is apparently being repeated. Prostitution among Indians followed quickly upon the whisky debauchery. From the increasing numbers of Indian women on the streets of what passes for the skid-rows of the prairies, the Indians are back where

Blocking Traffic

Driving downtown this morning short-ly after 8:30, I wondered as I have on other mornings, why the city bothers to post main thoroughfares with "No Stopping 8 a.m. to 9 a.m." signs.

In theory the signs are designed to open up the curb lane to morning rushhour traffic (and in the afternoon) but the city's good intentions are often thoroughly frustrated by drivers of commercial vehicles. This morning for instance, in the stretch from Fort and Richmond to Pandora and Blanshard, I encountered in the right-hand lane, successively, a furniture van unloading, a contractor's truck and department store delivery vehicle also stationary. In each case the line of traffic in the right-hand lane was forced to stop until the left-hand lane was clear.

Not only does this flagrant violation of the "No Stopping" signs constitute an ill-mannered inconvenience to the public but it is also a definite traffic hazard which the police should be instructed to check immediately before the situation grows worse.-Impatient.

Arms Cuts Dangerous Says Panel

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON - A research panel's opinion that the U.S. plan for eventual global disarmament is unworkable and possibly dangerous is disclosed in a report to the U.S. disarmament

An underlying theme in the 129-page study is that the scrapping of national armed forces in favor of a powerful United Nations peace force, as envisaged in the final stage of the U.S. blueprint, does not provide adequate alternative machinery to protect national interests in a troubled world.

The two-year study of the U.S. plan for general and complete disarmament was made by a seven-man panel of experts at Johns Hopkins University's Washington Centre of Foreign Policy Research under a $87,308 with the Arms Control and Disarmament

Among the panelists were Livingstone T. Merchant, former state undersecretary who was U.S. ambassador to Canada in 1956-58 and 1961-62; Charles Burton, former state department policy planner, and Prof. Arnold Wolfers, of the research

Propaganda

The U.S. proposal was presented to the continuing 17-nation disarmament parley at Geneva in 1962, partly as a propaganda counter to the Soyiet's widely-publicized armament.

Under the U.S. plan, balanced arms reduction would proceed by stages. By the final phase, stage three, means for just and peaceful settlement of all international disputes would be worked out and the UN force would be too strong to be challenged by national forces.

Among the comments of the panelists in the study:

Wolfers - An international peace force controlled by the UN as presently constituted would offer little comfort to the United States" in coping with anti-Western subversive forces and might even side

Robert E. Osgood - Gen disarmament would create "a temptation to strike first" by countries which figure they could hit even a potentially powerful state before it had a chance to rearm.

Marshall -- "Military forces are an essential part of the internal a e s u s i t y arrange ments of a state. With military power vested in a UN national governments would lose a power to assure their survival."

Merchant - A UN peace force under the present UN charter would not be under "positive control" by the United States and would be of small help if needed "to deter fight aggression in which the Soviet Union was directly or indirectly implicated. ...

Federal Gov't Failing Obligation to Indians

Criticism of Canada's reserves policy for Native Indians was voiced by Frank Calder in a national radio talk recently. Mr. Calder is the NDP member of the B.C. legislature for Atlin and the first Indian elected to a provincial house. These are excerpts from his address.

Only the Russians Can Alter Viet War And They're Cautious

The Chinese have once proclaimed that they are willing to provide North Viet Nam with all the aid that is needed and wanted even "if such just action should result in American aggression against China.'

The Russians, too, promised help "on the necessary scale," reported popular anger throughout the world at "this new act of vandalism" described the American Independence Day as "a Day of National Shame:

There have been similar dignant protests from other Communist capitals. Yet sceptics, and not only hawks, will recall that such threats have been heard in the past without dire consequences.

The newspapers, however provide some explanation of the contrast between the verbal violence and the relative practical restraint. On July 5 the Peking People's Daily asked the Americans, 'since you have come from the sky and the sea, why cannot others go forward on the ground?" On the same resolve of the Soviet Union to help North Viet Nam "politicaily, economically and with means of defence to repel the imperialist attack."

Admittedly, the Russians could shift the onus of decis-ion on to the Americans by sending their pilots as "volunteers," but they would know that the risk of mutual nuclear annihilation existed from the moment they decided on such a course action.

Because the Soviet Union allone can bring about such a qualitative change in the war, it has been argued in some namese leaders are likely, in Moscow rather than Peking.

But what is the use of ilitary superiority that is not applied, not even diplomatic ally, coupled with a deterrent that does not deter?

Since Mr. Khrushchev's fall. his successors have cleverly rebuilt their position in the international Communist movement by pleading for unity in the "struggle against American imperialism" and by accusing the Chinese of breaking this solidarity. The many government treaties, agreements, and regulations, that established the Indian reservations, were binding separate, and limited in nature, and they only confirmed the marginal relationship which the Indians had maintained with the industrial and commercial societies of the colonial era. Welfare, Health, Education, Lands

The new policies included issues of welfare, health, education, lands, agriculture, forestry, minerals, etc., which were administered by the new Indian Affairs Branch, which, under the British North America Act, were provincial jurisdictions. Further functions of the branch were the management of reserves and surrendered ands, tribal funds, descent of property, treaty obligations, enfranchisement of Indians. Whereas the provincial governments had provided certain tracts of land throughout Canada in trust for the use and benefit of the Indians, we find that the federal government has failed this trust. We find also that, on the Indian reserve communities, the federal government plan has not been fulfilled. We find that the reservation system still creates a social isolation for the Indians. This But Must Admire His Mooching has kept them from needful contacts with the outside non-Indian communities through which there may have been mutual benefits. For the Indian people in general, therefore, there are no socially rewarding goals.

Geographic reserve separations, created by the system, still means disorganization and disunity in tribal affairs for the Indians, both provin-cially and federally. From this lack of tribal co-operation and harmony the Indian values remain a conflict to the extent it becomes difficult for them to accept the white man's way of life.

From my own personal views and conclusions, I charge that the Indian reservation system breeds an in-feriority complex and dependwhich destroys the In-

One result of this conscious ness was the Indians' desire to organize into provincial units from which they may platform their requests

Another result of this con sciousness was the desire move to urban localities where education, health and welfar attention, and employment, may be appreciated.

This was the beginning of Indian urbanization, which a noticeable trend today both States.

However, I would point out that one major factor in this trend is the modern Indians realization of the lack of destiny and purpose for them

Step Toward Elimination

The gradual departure from the reserves has placed the urban Indians under provin cial jurisdiction. The trend is the reason why I have advo cated, in past years and now for provincial jurisdiction of all Indian affairs. I visualize too, that this may be ar important step toward properly-guided elimination of Indian reserves

The two levels of govern ent have adopted the policy of the community and reserves.

Community and economic development on reserves is a basic step towards extin-guishment of the reserve system, and thus the program ist be wisely and constructively administered to its fulfillment.

Therefore, any government plan to this end must include the full participation of the Indian people. Indian initiative this regard is important. It absolutely necessary in their administrative responsi-bilities to achieve self-government, self-determination, independence, and adaptation in new situations.

And, as I have attempted to outline in this brief presentation, elimination must be vi from a long-term policy. At that time, when the Indians are able to stand up on their own two feet, equal in every respect with his fellow Canadian citizens, and with the consent of the Indians, the government may begin the gradual process of the elimination of reserves.

'Punch' Chalks Up 125 Years LONDON - Britain's original satire magazine "Punch celebrated its 125th birthday this week with a 124-page issue including a complete reprint of its first issue.

"A careful perusal leaves ne wondering how it ever survived its first week, let alone its first century and a said the London quarter," Times editorially. "The first edition contained enough material to justify half a dozen successful libel suits and the hauling of the editor, Mark Limon, before the bar of the House of Commons.

Lord Melbourne and Lord Palmerston were two of the politicians lampooned by the acid young men of 1841 but "luckily for the press and public the libel writs were never issued."
"Punch," which claims

among other feats to have invented the cartoon, has recaptured its radical bite under its last two editors Malcolm Muggeridge and Bernard Hollowood after half a century supporting

Then because of its greater bulk on hatching, the nestling cowbird gets more than its share of food, tramples down the other young ones and eventually pushes them out of the nest. It thereafter receives all the attention of its foster parents and soon outstrips even

Thus a single cowbird for each pair of

victims is the general rule. A pair would indicate that a female laid two eggs in the same nest, or, more likely, that two different cowbirds parasitized the same pair. If the latter were the case it might suggest that cowbirds were increasing in numbers. Indeed, there are more around southern Vancouver Island at the present time than there have been for many years, but it is not known if the popula-

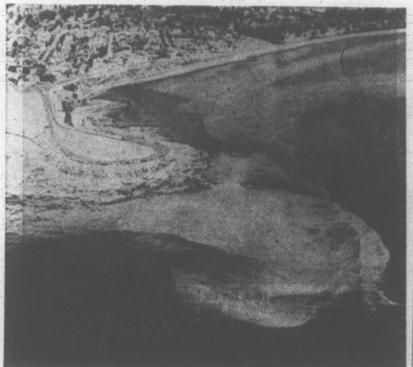

While on the subject of feeding it may be interesting to record that an observer recently noted a house sparrow feeding a young violetgreen swallow sticking its head out of a nesting box. While it is unusual for a bird to feed young of another species such behavior is not inknown. In most cases it is assumed the adult bird is "in the feeding mood." Perhaps it is feeding its own young nearby and is diverted by calls somewhat similar to those of its own offspring or possibly it has lost its own brood but is still stimulated by hungry fledglings no matter what species.

The instinct to feed young is obviously a very strong one. It is partly triggered by the sounds made by the nestlings and while these are fairly distinctive for each species there is sufficient similarity between some to occasionally attract the wrong parent.

But sound is not the only stimulating factor in these cases—an open mouth is sometimes sufficient. In young birds the gape is often unusually wide and the inside of the cavity is sometimes brilliantly colored—designed thus prompt the parent bird into dropping food into the right place.

In support of the contention that an open mouth alone will evoke a feeding response there appeared recently a widely-publicized picture showing a cardinal feeding a goldfish at the edge of a pool. The expectant opening just above the surface was apparently enough to cause the bird to respond even though it certainly belonged to a very different animal.

Reschke took a playful swing at Kapp, who ducked sharply and saved his shiny teeth to sell more peanut butter on television.

Reschke spotted a guitar, plunked a few strings ("Ah! Lovely tone") and launched into something by Johny Cash.

Kapp, who will not replace Melchior, joined in.
Pat Claridge and Terry Leonard, non-music lovers, covered their ears in the front seat. The music wasn't that bad really. It was worse. But I couldn't leave. When you sit beside a quarter-ton of beef you hardly have room to change your mind let alone bail out.

Once at the Elks Hall where the B.C. Lions go to the trough three times daily (and petite waitresses blanch at the consumption) Claridge and Leonard hustled off.

Kapp and Reschke played their entire repetroire (two songs) over and over. Passers-by began to give the car strange ooks-Kapp wears a beard and sunglasses-and I hid furtively behind a newspaper.

"Defensive end is foreign to me," Reschke was saying. "As a linebacker there would not be so much to learn. Maybe this is best. I have to watch the offensive guard now and engage him mentally first—'Am I able to handle you?'—And it is a

Rudy Hopes Dropouts Will Notice

A few years ago the possibility of Rudy Reschke ever being at a professional football camp was the remotest thing

"I had left high school to work as a logger, all that money —I couldn't resist. For two years I did this, in Rivers Inlet and places like that. Then a light dawned. I got in touch with University of Utah and asked if they were still interested and they said yes. So I went back to school. I have just over a year to go for my degree in engineering."

"If you are going to write anything about me," he said, "mention that I went back to school, will you? There are so many dropouts it may be that if one reads this and thinks about it he will return. That would be good. He might not play football, but he wight first himself." football, but he might find himself."

When you're a rookie in a professional football camp you need a master's degree in skill, courage and desire to survive. Frank Johnston, the Lions' offensive coach, put it simply: "Hit and take a hit . . . or git."

The attrition rate among rookies is high when the chips of employment are on the table. With Rudy Reschke you get the impression that he knows you have to spit blood before

Fine Teamwork By Shamrocks Trips Leaders

Victoria 11, Coquitlam 8 By DOUG PEDEN

Coquitlam Adanacs pulled an old howitzer back into action Wednesday night at Memorial Arena.

Jack Barclay, talked out of retirement ideas by the leaders of the Inter-City Lacrosse League, made his start of the season and boomed in four goals against Victoria Sham-

With that kind of firepower added to a sniping corps that included league scoring leader Mike Gates, Adanacs were rated odds-on favorites to blast the Irish a little deeper into the eague cellar. Adanaes discovered Victoria coach Bert Bertoia had an antidote for individual bril-He had 12 guys who anted to win.

That was all he needed Bert's ermined dozen made hustle and teamwork pay off for an 11first two-game winning streak of the campaign.

"It was a good team effort, real good," beamed Bertoia. Everyone played well. It was a real good win.

DESERVED WIN

Although the victory still left the Irish a long way from overhauling New Westminster Salmonbellies for the fourth and last playoff position, the manne in which it was accomplished impressed Coquitlam playing-coach Gordie Gimple.

"It was a very good win," aid the sweat-drenched Gimple before he stepped into a shower. "They deserved it.

"We can't expect to come over here and just go through the motions. They outhustled us and outplayed us and beat us fair and square. "It's too bad Victoria had N uch a poor start. The way they played tonight they are liable to D, McNeill at anybody."

Unfortunately, they'll have to L do a lot of beating in their remaining 10-games in order to mab the last playoff spot. The Forbes Irish are still nine points behind Westminster and any combina-tion of six, made up of Victoria Coquitiam Shamrock losses or Westminster ins, will eliminate Victoria.

But cold statistics couldn't rase any of the glitter from Wednesday's triumph.

FINE GOALTENDING

Shamrocks, going most of the way with two forward lines against the three used by the 14player Adanacs, played solid acrosse. They seldom gave the chased loose balls like terriers after rabbits and got fine goaltending by Barry Forbes.

Yellowhead Opening Unlikely

EDMONTON (CP)-There no indication that the Yellowhead highway route can be reopened to traffic this summer, a spokesman for the B.C. highways department said Tuesday.

Mud and rough surfaces have made tourist traffic impossible on the 150-mile highway, which runs from Jasper National Park to Kamloops on the south leg and to McBride, B.C., on the north leg.

The highways spokesman said in a telephone interview from Kamloops that the road is passable from Kamloops to Blue River, and north route is open to McBride, but there is no through road to Prince George.

Repair work on the south leg is said to be progressing favorably, but the road is being used at the present time only by road workers and residents of

Salmon fishing can be wild, exciting game, but like the pursuit of the trout better, and best of all the angling that offers when the sea-run cutthroat invade our Island

The sea-run is a strong and excllent fish. His average size, as I have en-great days yielded its five and even sixpounders to the fly.

In the pan, the flesh of this sea-trading trout is more orange than pink. Fry him, with a rasher or two of bacon for company, serve him when the fillets peel easily from his vell-behaved bones, and you have fish at its absolute best.

Moreover, the sea-run cut throat is rarely hard to lure, once the basic know-how has been acquired, and on light tackle—by which I mean flyfisherman's gear-is a lively indefinitely. However, there are still enough sea-runs in the tidal river reaches, and in tidewater itself, to provide good sport.

His kind are less numerous than they used to be, and unless brought under a more rigorous conservation and propagation program than they presently enjoy, may not haunt our Island east coast streams

I have stressed the fly as the preferred lure for sea-runs, and when these silver-mailed rovers are about, shrimp or silver-bodied minnow imita-tions will usually outfish bait and have taken my share of sea-runs with a garden worm hind a twinkling spinner. Sling this rig out, fish it across the brackish flow where stream meets salt chuck at low-tide change, and your reward may be an electrifying tug. My father, for whom heaven's closest approach to earth was a day on the lower mile of the Oyster, was a worm-and-spinner fisherman. He worked the water with infinite guile and patience, and rarely did he jog back to camp withtrout or two in his little rises. Drop a floating fly-hairwinged yellow Wulf or brown-and-white bivisible—near one of those unobstrusive dimples, and it may vanish in a swashing swirl.

Our Island offers no fishing so near to the dainty chalkstream angling of certain famed English streams. But the sea-runs of October are

Salmon are in our rivers then; spawn-laden humpbacks and perhaps coho, and the searuns tag along after them,

They are hungry for dropped eggs. They lie downstream of the salmon, which form a black mass in the deeps of each good holding pool. Even in water clear almost as air, the big cutties of October are all but invisible. Then a mouth opens lazily, the interior of the pugnacious jaws shows and you glimpse the long shadow winnowing above the gravel. One autumn we followed the Oyster around an upstream bend or two, and came to a run where the stream flowed gently through a deep basin. In the hole below the entrance riffle, an occasional salmon rolled a bronze back an alder leaned out over the easy flow.

I bounced a white-winged Bucktail Coachman off the opposing cutbank. It sank, and swam deep, and as the line straightened downstream, a sea-run nailed it. DBS surveys show the aver age family spends nearly one quarter of its income on food, the biggest item on every budget, she said.

By contrast, education was the smallest item, accounting for only 0.6 per cent of the budget and being surpassed even by the amount spent on igarettes and alcohol.

Housing was the secondargest expense, taking nearly one-fifth of the average income while car purchase and operating costs took 9.1 per cent of the average income and clothes accounted for 8.8 per cent. The average income of families surveyed in 1963 was $5,939, up $2,400 from the 1951' figure.

Part of this, Miss McWhinney said, can be attributed to the great increase in the number of married women who work. But while the working woman's contribution to the Janet Lennon, 19, is the youngest of the famous singing Lennon singers. Just 9 when she joined the perennially top-rated ABC-TV Lawrence Welk' Show, pretty Janet receives more fan mail than many of our most dazzling and sophisticated glamor girls. Welk demands two things of his young singers: They must be sweetly feminine and wholesome. It is precisely these qualities that have endeared the Lennon sisters to their loyal fans.

"I love the sun-kissed look, so I never wear wide-brunned hats on the beach to protect my face or hair, Janet told us when we asked for her "beauty at the beach" tips. "As a result, I'm afraid I sometimes look quite a signt, with my hair flying every which way, but I don't mind. Frank Sinatra is in an envious position with the big networks wooing him for all they are worth.

NBC-TV, which had Sinatra in its corner for the memorable specials last season, may have lost the crooner to CBS-TV.

CBS, unlike NBC, offered Sinatra any hour for his special for next season, including the highly-coveted Sunday 8 to 9 p.m. Ed Sullivan Hour.

Andy Griffith, who rocketed to stardom on Broadway in the smash, "No Time for Sergeants," has signed an exclusive contract with Universal Studios for him to star in 10 films in the next five years.

He's no stranger to film-making. He did the film version of "Sergeants" for Warner Bros. He also was in two subsequent Warner features, "Face in the Crowd" and "Onionhead."

Griffith will also begin his seventh year in his "Andy Griffith Show" on CBS-TV this fall.

Tent, Fishing Development Planned

A controlled recreational development near Prospect Lake is planned by Edward Travers.

It would include camping, fishing and some horseback riding on 23 acres at 205 Meadowbrook Road.

"It will be controlled as to density to keep aesthetic quali-ties of the countryside."

Mr. Travers said he doesn't intend to develop all 23 acres. "I would intend to go slowly at first, to see how it goes over.

It won't be a great big deal going to splurge overnight." He has applied to Saanich for commercial recreation zoning for the property.

Waterway, Landscaping Begins

The front of the Saanich municipal hall, bare since it pened last fall, is being andscaped.

Municipal crews have moved In to grade the rough land on the Vernon Avenue side.

Just completed are the sweeping semi-circular front steps. When the work is finished, a waterway will lead across the front through ponds and wiers and down one side of the hall to a waterpool at the back. A pump will re-circulate the water.

The front will be basically grass with some shrubs. Municipal engineer Neville Municipal engineer Newtie Life said the landscaping should "take shape" by the fall with some parts of it, including rock placing, being left for the winter works program.

Total cost is about $42,000.

British Cadets Here Two Days; Tour Dockyard

Twenty-five British air cadets will spend two days in Victoria next month.

The visit is part of an annual exchange program which also sends Canadian air cadets to other countries.

14 Hurt in Brawl NEW YORK (AP)-A bottlethrowing brawl erupted Tuesday night after an integrated dance for teen-agers at the Coney Island beach and amusement area, police said. At least 14 persons were injured and 17 were arrested. Police said the fighting appeared to be among Negroes only and they could find no indication of any racial tension.

graduate has endowed the school with a $1,000 bond.

Mrs. C. N. Whipple gave the grant without telling even her own family and was disconcerted when asked about it. She said "I have five daughters and only one of them graduated from high school. She attended Mount View and I sort of feel that it has become my school. The school I actually attended is now defunct or I would probably have given the money to it."

Mrs. Whipple's daughter who is the Mount View graduate is Barbara Whipple and she is now a teacher. Next term she will teach in the Nanaimo school district.

The endowment specifies that interest from the bond, estimated at $55 annually, shall be used at the discretion of the principal and staff for the benefit of the students. The the principal and staff for the benefit of the students. The money will likely be used to buy books for the library or additional equipment for the laboratories.

When the bond matures it is to be re-invested and the interest will go to the school in perpetuity.

Mrs. Whipple had earlier presented the school with a trophy for award to the student making the highest achievement. This trophy in future will be awarded the student having the highest standing in a non-academic course. Bob Huddleston, principal of Mount View School, is delighted at what he called "this most generous gift."

MARTIN SET FOR 49TH OPENING

Health Minister Eric Martin announced Tuesday he will open the 49th new hospital in B.C. since he took over the portfolio in 1952.

It will be the $900,000 31-bed general hospital at 100-Mile House which will commence operation officially July 15.

"The opening of this fine new hospital is of interest not only to the people of the immediate area but to everyone in the province," Mr. Martin said. "It is the 49th new hospital

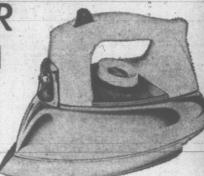

I have opened. "These hospitals, through-out the length and breadth of B.C., were built at costs of almost $52 million of which the provincial government has provided grants of approxim $25.5 million."

Ballantine's Scotch in a clear bottle?

Ronnie Colville of Dumbarton didna' take to it lightly.

Ronnie Colville is the master blender at our Dumbarton distillery near Loch Lomond.

With typical Scottish thoroughness, he's responsible for marrying 42 fine whiskies so they add up to the inimitable flavour and lightness of Ballantine's.

Now in Mr. Colville's canny and exacting profession, they're not exactly opposed to change; they just can't see the need of it. So why the new bottle? "It's more in keeping with Ballantine's traditionally light character," we suggested.

Ronnie agreed that Ballantine's had always been a beautifully light Scotch with a smooth, mellow bouquet (indeed we'd never change a drop of it for the world). But it wasn't 'til a clear bottle had been observed and the whisky's fine golden hue carefully noted that he made a decision.

"Given time, a man might grow to like this new bottle," he remarked. Clearly, an overwhelming vote of

By FRANK CAREY WASHINGTON (AP) - A new breed of miniature pigs is providing valuable aid to radiation and other research affecting man, the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission reported Wednesday.

The pigs, similar to man in many physiological ways, are develop new and improved Developed by the AEC's

Hanford Laboratories at Richland, Wash. — and named "Hanford miniatures" — the pige never grow heftier than 160 to 180 pounds, the weight of an average man. This compared with weights of 600 pounds or more for the usual run-of-the-pigpen hog. Thus, the smaller models are ideal animals for various kinds of medical research, the AEC contends.

A new booklet by the AEC which tells about the pigs describes various other nonnuclear, technological advances resulting from basic atomic research and development during the last 20 years. PROVIDES PAYOFFS

The AEC said fundamental tomic research — originally devoted exclusively to fabri-cating bigger and more powerful weapons — has provided indirect bonuses to man in such fields as:

Describing the pig development, the AEC said:

"One interesting thing about pigs is that they are similar in many ways to man. Because they eat almost anything, as man does, their gastro-intestinal tracts are about the same as man's. So is their dental structupe. . . "

Also, there are great simi-larities in bone and body, as well as in the skin depart-

The trouble in the past has been that pigs eventually get too big — far beyond the weight of an average man.

So, five years ago, scientists at Hanford — now known as the Pacific Northwest Laboratory — set out to develop a breed of pigs that would reach - and stay at - the average man's size.

The trick was started by crossing a palouse sow with a light-colored Pitman-Moore boar — and a breeding herd of more than 100 now has been developed. But the de-mand for them by research institutions "is threatening to get out of hand," the AEC

PENSION Eight Chicago Nurses Slain

To Supplement Contributory Plan In 'Crime of the Century'

OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister MacEachen announced today a $30-amonth supplementary to old age pensions for those who won't qualify for benefits of the contributory Canada Pension Plan. It will guarantee them a minimum income of $105 a month.

He informed the Commo that legislation to authorize the supplement will be placed be-fore the House when Parliament resumes after a summer

Total annual cost of the sup plement is estimated at $225,-000,000 at the start. But since it applies only to those who will not benefit from the Canada Pension Plan it will disappear

Mr. MacEachen may have dropped a hint of higher taxes by adding that "the revenues measures that will be needed to meet the burden which these supplementary benefits will place on our national finances are also being considered."

There now are more than 1,000,000 persons 69 or over who receive the flat $75-a-month old

age pension WILL INCREASE

Benefits from the Canada Pension Plan start next Jan. 1 but only those who have made contributions. Benefits gradually increase in accordance with years of contributions.

Mr. MacEachen said the pension supplement is being vised with the Canada and Que-bec pension plans in mind "for those people who are not and will not—because of age—be able to take advantage of the

In the pan, the flesh of this sea-trading trout is more orange than pink. Fry him, with a rasher or two of bacon for company, serve him when the fillets peel easily from his well-behaved bones, and you have fish at its absolute best.

Moreover, the sea-run cutthroat is rarely hard to lure, once the basic know-how has been acquired, and on light tackle-by which I mean fly-fisherman's gear-is a lively

His kind are less numerous than they used to be, and unrigorous conservation and pro pagation program than they presently enjoy, may not haunt our Island east coast streams indefinitely.

However, there are enough sea-runs in the tidal river reaches, and in tidewater itself, to provide good sport.

I have stressed the fly as the preferred lure for sea-runs, and when these silver-mailed rovers are about, shrimp or silver-bodied minnow tions will usually outfish bait or hardware.

But I am no purist, and have taken my share of sea-runs with a garden worm threaded on a snelled hook behind a twinkling spinner. Sling this rig out, fish it across the brackish flow where stream meets salt chuck at low-tide change, and your reward may be an electrifying tug.

My father, for whom heav en's closest approach to earth was a day on the lower mile of the Oyster, was a worm-and spinner fisherman. He worked the water with infinite guile and patience, and rarely did he jog back to camp with trout or two in his

I have caught sea-runs every month of the year, but they are at their bright, fat best from June through to October.

On July evenings, down where the Cowichan slips out between ridge and salt-flats to its bay. I have watched them dimple the surface in quiet little rises.

Drop a floating fly-hairvinged yellow Wulf or brownand-white bivisible—near one of those unobstrusive dimples, and it may vanish in a swashing swirl.

Our Island offers no fishing so near to the dainty chalkstream angling of certain famed English streams. But the sea-runs of October are

Salmon are in our rivers then; spawn-laden humpbacks and perhaps coho, and the searuns tag along after them,

They are hungry for dropped eggs. They lie downstream of the salmon, which form a black mass in the deeps of each good holding pool. an alder leaned out over the easy flow.
I bounced a white-winged Bucktail Coachman off the opposing cutbank. It sank, and swam deep, and as the line straightened downstream, a sea-run nailed it. He fought well, leaping clear of water spangled by golden alder leaves, and weighed just short of two-and-a-half pounds on the little scales I carry, op-

WASHINGTON - A research panel's opinion that the U.S. plan for eventual global disarmament is unworkable and possibly dangerous is disclosed in a report to disarmament the

An underlying theme in the 129-page study is that the scrapping of national armed forces in favor of a powerful United Nations peace force, as envisaged in the final stage of the U.S. blueprint, does no provide adequate alternative interests in a troubled world.

The two-year study of the J.S. plan for general and complete disarmament was complete disarmament was finade by a seven-man panel of experts at Johns Hopkins U'n' versity's Washington Centre of Foreign Policy Research under a $87,308 contract with the Arms Control and Disarmament serves policy for Native Indians was voiced by Frank Calder in a national radio talk recently. Mr. Calder is the NDP member of the B.C. legislature for Atlin and the first Indian elected to a provincial house. These are excerpts from his address.

Only the Russians Can Alter Viet War And They're Cautious

THE ECONOMIST

The response from Communist countries to the bombings of the Hanoi and Haiphong to the established pattern.

The Chinese have once again proclaimed that they are willing to provide North Viet Nam with all the aid that is needed and wanted even "if such just action should result American aggression against China.'

The Russians, too, promised help "on the necessary scale," reported popular anger throughout the world at "this new act of vandalism" described the American Independence Day as "a Day of National Shame.'

There have been similar indignant protests from other Communist capitals. Yet sceptics, and not only hawks will recall that such threats have been heard in the past without

The newspapers, however provide some explanation of the contrast between the verbal violence and the relative practical restraint. On July 5 the Peking People's Daily asked the Americans since you have come from the sky and the sea, why cannot others go forward on the ground?" On the same day Pravda reiterated the resolve of the Soviet Union to help North Viet Nam "politicarly, economically and with means of defence to repel the mperialist attack.'

In other words, the Communist power which cannot basically alter the structure of he war spoke of an offensive response, while the power which does have the power to change the course of the war still speaks in terms of a defensive counter to the American bombing.

If the Chinese should one day match their words with deeds and, send troops into Viet Nam (either straight into South Viet Nam or as replacements for North Vietnamese froops), the American command would have a real problem on its hands - and the hawks an opportunity to at Chinese nuclear installations — yet the war would be altered only the war could be radically altered by Communist strikes against American air bases in the south and against An can aircraft carriers. Only Russia could bring about such a qualitative change - but at risk of world war.

Admittedly, the Russians could shift the onus of decision on to the Americans by sending their pilots as "volunbut they would know that the risk of mutual nuclear annihilation existed from the moment they decided on such a course of action.

Because the Soviet Union alone can bring about such a qualitative change in the war, it has been argued in some quarters that the North Vietnamese leaders are likely, in the long run, to turn to Moscow rather than Peking.

But what is the use of military superiority that is not applied, not even diplomatic ally, coupled with a deterrent that does not deter?

Since Mr. Khrushchev's fall. rebuilt their position in the international Communist movement by pleading for unity in the "struggle against American imperialism" and by accusing the Chinese of breaking this solidarity. This policy, however, implies sending increasing aid, both eco-nomic and military, to North Viet Nam, and increasing risks as the stakes continue to

It is not difficult to guess that the Kremlin is once again divided by the fundamental conflict over foreign policy which has rent the leadership

n the past. On one side are Khrushchevians, who are de-termined to minimize the risks in distant areas and that Russia should concentrate on economic development in Europe in the hope that this will eventually offer new and less hazardous opportunities for progress.

On the other hand, there are the more revolutionary leaders who claim that this policy deprives the communist world of all the best opportunities for making progress the years to come, and that it will simply to act toughly

On the eve of the federa centennial year of 1967, the Native Indians hold a peculiar and contradictory position in our Canadian history and

Their dubious and unusual social, economic, legal, and political status may be traced historically from the begin-ning of the European advent in North America, through the periods of conquest, subjecion neglect, and the introduction and establishment of the Indian Reservation system.

The many government

treaties, agreements, and regulations, that established the Indian reservations, were binding separate, and limited in nature, and they only confirmed the marginal rehad maintained with the industrial and commercial so cieties of the colonial era. In other words, these treaties and other government agreements, including the early Indian Acts, were nothing but restrictive covenants as they relate to the reservations.

nomic change was gradually transforming the general so-ciety, the Indian reserve communities took on the appearance of cultural regions in which there was economic tagnation and social disorder The system severed the con-tinuity of the Indians' traditional economic way of life, and indeed, it created a social and cultural disruption.

reservation system the rapid disruption of the social and economic way of life created a marked disturbance in the in lividual lives of the Indians horause the mounting strosses sentful, and apathetic reaction to any government policies directed toward development

Welfare, Health, Education, Lands

The new policies included issues of welfare, health, education, lands, agriculture, forestry, minerals, etc., which were administered by the new Indian Affairs Branch, and which, under the British North America Act, were provincial jurisdictions. Further functions of the branch management reserves and surrendered lands, tribal funds, descent of property, treaty obligations, enfranchisement of Indians. This, then, was definitely an administration of wards of the federal government and the

What was the program for the Indians, then? The primary function of the federal government through its Indian Affairs Branch was to administer the affairs of the Indians of Canada in a manner that will enable them to become increasingly selfsupporting and independent Now, then, what do we find governments had provided certain tracts of land throughout Canada in trust for the find that the federa government has failed this trust. We find also that, on the Indian reserve communi-ties, the federal government plan has not been fulfilled. We find that the reservation system still creates a social isolation for the Indian's. This But Must Admire His Mooching has kept them from needful contacts with the outside non-Indian communities through which there may have been mutual benefits. For the Indian people in general, therefore, there are no socially rewarding goals.

Geographic reserve separa-tions, created by the system, still means disorganization and disunity in tribal affairs for the Indians, both provin-cially and federally. From this lack of tribal co-operation and harmony the Indian values remain a conflict to the extent it becomes difficult for them to accept the white man's way of life.

From my own personal views and conclusions, I charge that the Indian reser vation system breeds an inferiority complex and depend-ency which destroys the Indians' initiative.

Sometimes From Anger

In these thousands upon thousands of reserves throughout Canada, I see nothing but sick environments. From grave disappointments from the lack of government policies and sometimes from plain anger, from the sight of many squalor and poverty situa-tions, I have referred to the reserves, both in public and on the floor of the B.C. Legislature, as concentration camps, colonies within a Dominion, and Confederation's Little Aeres. In these terminologies I am not alone. Other critics have voiced the lack of proper housing, water supply, sewage disposal medical attention and facilities, discrimination in welfare, educational and vocational training, and many depression years and the inning of the Second World War the Indians became very conscious of situations with their environment and general surroundings. They were con De partment administration, that is, in education and school facilities, medical estiny and purpose for them

The gradual departure from the reserves has placed the urban Indians under provin-cial jurisdiction. The trend is the reason why I have advo cated, in past years and now; for provincial jurisdiction of all Indian affairs, I visualize, too, that this may be an important step toward a properly-guided elimination of Indian reserves

The two levels of govern ment have adopted the policy of the community and reserves.

Community and economic levelopment on reserves is a basic step towards extin-guishment of the reserve guishment of the reserve system, and thus the program tively administered to its

Therefore, any government plan to this end must include the full participation of the Indian people. Indian initiative in this regard is important. It absolutely necessary in their administrative responsi-bilities to achieve self-government, self-determination. new situations.

To achieve success in the government plan there must also be a co-operation from the three levels of governthe Indians and all Canadians. The progressive program must include selective appointments of Indian superintendents and officers who are well-versed and trained as economists, soci-ologists and anthropologists,

Long-Term Policy Needed

Final achievement of the plan does not necessarily mean the end of the program. The ultimate motive must be the elimination of the reserve system. And, as I attempted to outline in brief presentation, from a long-term policy. The Indians must be allowed sufficient time and opportunity to adjust into the social, econ-omic, and educational life of the country.

I say this: for 100 years of confinement and neglect, there must be 100 years of a g o v e rmment-sponsored pro-gram for Indian rehabilita-

At that time, when the Indians are able to stand up on their own two feet, equal in every respect with his fellow Canadian citizens, and with the consent of the Indians, the government may begin the gradual process of the elimination of reserves.

'Punch' Chalks Up 125 Years LONDON - Britain's origi-

reprint of its first issue.

"A careful perusal leaves one wondering how it ever survived its first week, let alone its first century and a quarter," said the London Times editorially. "The first edition contained enough material to justify half a dozen successful libel suits and the hauling of the editor, Mark Limon, before the bar of the House of Commons."

Lord Melbourne and Lord Palmerston were two of the politicians lampooned by the acid young men of 1841 but "luckily for the press and public the libel writs were never issued."

A reader says: "Some weeks ago I saw a chipping sparrow feeding two young cow-birds. Is this unusual? Is the cowbird increasing in numbers?"

Yes, it is rather unusual to see two cowhirds being reared by a foster parent. One is the usual number and one ist just about all the foster parents can handle The cowbird is not in high favor with most bird-watchers because it victimizes so many of our songbirds. However, one must admire the wonderful way it has become adapted to a para-sitic way of life. As with the European cuckoo, which has similar habits, modifi-Dr. Carl cations are found in the behavior of the adult birds and also in the structure and behavior

In the first place, the female builds no nest and rears no young. She lays her eggs in the nests of other birds and lets her victims do all the work. To accomplish this she searches out other species engaged in nest-building and at the appropriate time she slips onto the nest and deposits an egg. This calls for considerable control over the actual egg-laying process since rather precise timing is necessary

Timing also comes into the hatching phase. The cowbird egg, usually larger than the rightful eggs in the nest, ordinarily would take longer to hatch but the rate of development is apparently speeded up so that the young interloper arrives about the same time as its foster brothers and sisters if not before.

Then because of its greater bulk on hatching, the nestling cowbird gets more than its share of food, tramples down the other young ones and eventually pushes them out of the It thereafter receives all the attention of 18 foster parents and soon outstrips even

victims is the general rule. A pair would indicate that a female laid two eggs in the same nest, or, more likely, that two different cowbirds parasitized the same pair. If the latter were the case it might suggest that cowbirds were increasing in numbers. Indeed, there are more around southern Vancouver Island at the present time than there have been for many years, but it is not known if the population is actually rising While on the subject of feeding it may be interesting to record that an observer recently noted a house sparrow feeding a young violetgreen swallow sticking its head out of a nesting-While it is unusual for a bird to feed young of another species such behavior is not unknown. In most cases it is assumed the adult bird is "in the feeding mood." Perhaps it is feeding its own young nearby and is diverted by calls somewhat similar to those of its own offspring or possibly it has lost its own brood but is still stimulated by hungry fledglings no matter what species.

* * * The instinct to feed young is obviously a very strong one. It is partly triggered by the sounds made by the nestlings and while these are fairly distinctive for each species there is sufficient similarity between some to occasionally attract the wrong parent.

But sound is not the only stimulating factor in these cases-an open mouth is sometimes sufficient. In young birds the gape is often unusually wide and the inside of the cavity is sometimes brilliantly colored—designed thus to prompt the parent bird into dropping food into the right place.

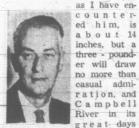

In support of the contention that an open-buth alone will evoke a feeding response, there appeared recently a widely-publicized picture showing a cardinal feeding a goldfish at the edge of a pool. The expectant opening just above the surface was apparently enough to cause the bird to respond even though it certainly belonged to a very different animal.

Salmon fishing can be wild, exciting game, but I like the pursuit of the trout better, and best of all the angling that offers when the sea-run cutthroat invade our Island

The sea-run is a strong and excllent fish. His average size, as I have en-

River in its great days yielded its five and even sixpounders to the fly.

In the pan, the flesh of this sea-trading trout is more orange than pink. Fry him, with a rasher or two of bacon for company, serve him when the fillets neel easily from his well-behaved bones, and you have fish at its absolute best.

Moreover, the sea-run cutthroat is rarely hard to lure, once the basic know how has been acquired, and on light tackle-by which I mean flyfisherman's gear-is a lively

His kind are less numerous than they used to be, and unless brought under a more rigorous conservation and propagation program than they presently enjoy, may not haunt our Island east coast streams indefinitely.

However, there are still enough sea-runs in the tidal river reaches, and in tidewater itself, to provide good sport.

I have stressed the fly as the preferred lure for sea-runs, and when these silver-mailed rovers are about, shrimp or silver-bodied minnow imita-tions will usually outfish bait or hardware.

But I am no purist, and have taken my share of sea-runs with a garden worm threaded on a snelled hook behind a twinkling spinner. Sling this rig out, fish it across the brackish flow where stream meets salt chuck at low-tide change, and your reward may be an electrifying tug.

My father, for whom heav-en's closest approach to earth was a day on the lower mile ct the Oyster, was a worm-and-spinner fisherman. He worked the water with infinite guile and patience, and rarely did he jog back to camp with-out a trout or two in his basket.

I have caught sea-runs every month of the year, but they are at their bright, fat best from June through to October. On July evenings, down where the Cowichan slips out between ridge and salt-flats to its hay. I have watched them dimple the surface in quiet little rises.

Drop a floating fly-hairwinged yellow Wulf or brownand-white bivisible-near one those unobstrusive dimples, and it may vanish in a swashing swirl.

Our Island offers no fishing so near to the dainty chalk-stream angling of certain famed English streams. But sea-runs of October are less finicky.

Salmon are in our rivers then; spawn-laden humpbacks and perhaps coho and the searuns tag along after them.

They are hungry for dropped eggs. They lie downstream of the salmon, which form a black mass in the deeps of each good holding pool. Even in water clear almost as air, the big cutties of October are all but invisible. Then a mouth opens lazily, the interior of the pugnacious jaws shows white, and you glimpse the long shadow winnowing above

One autumn we followed the Oyster around an upstream bend or two, and came to a run where the stream flowed gently through a deep basin. trance riffle, an occasional salmon rolled a bronze back above-surface. Lower down, an alder leaned out over the I bounced a white-winged Bucktail Coachman off the opposing cutbank. It sank, and swam deep, and as the line straightened downstream, a sea-run nailed it. He fought leaping clear of water spangled by golden alder two-and-a-half pounds on the little scales I carry, optimistically, in my creel, We grilled him over a hat-sized fire of freshet drift; and even eaten unsalted with our fingers, he made as fine a feast as October can afford.

ORTHO Rose Dust knocks out bugs and fungus fast!

Don't put it off another day! This very weekend, you can battle and beat the most destructive enemies in your rose garden: insects that suck and chew and bite; fungus diseases that mar and blight and wither. You can fight back — and win!

Your weapons come in one easy-to-use plastic squeeze container. The name? ORTHO Rose Dust . . . and it packs two big punches. One: insecticides that make short work of aphids, thrips, Japanese beetles, rose weevils. Two:

fungicides that really work. Powdery mildew, black spot and rust don't stand a chance. Easy to use — just aim the duster and squeeze. No work.

ORTHO Rose Dust is effective, economical, and easy to use, just like all ORTHO products. You'll find ORTHO Rose Dust at your garden suppliers.

They were killed methodically, one at a time, by a blond man during a 21/2-hour horror orgy. Some were strangled, some shot and some knifed, police said. They were partially clothed and apparently sexu-ually molested. The rooms were looted.

One of the young women in the dormitory escaped after the killer's departure to tell the story to police. Police pieced the story together thus:

 About 12:30 a.m. a young man entered the nurses town-house by climbing through a rear window of the first floor. Carazon Amurao, 23, an exchange Filipino nurse, and another nurse confronted him. Carrying a gun in one hand and knife in the other, he made them go into another room and lie on the floor. He bound and gagged them with strips torn from a sheet.

 Sometime later two more student nurses entered the house. The intruder brought them to the same room and bound and

• Still later, another girl returned from a date and then two more returned. All were taken to the room and gagged and tied.

• The man finally had nine young women in the room and then began taking them away one at a time. • During one of his absences, Miss Amurao managed to roll under a bed. During the night of horror she was unable to loosen her bonds. About 6 a.m. when all became quiet, she came out from under the bed, ran into another bedroom and climbed out on the window ledge, screaming hysterically. Judy Dykton, a student in a nearby townhouse, saw Miss nurao and heard her screams and ran to notify the housemother in her townhouse • Miss Dykton and the housemother enter the nurses' resience and discovered the bodies.

Two of the victims were, like Miss Amurao, natives of the Philippines. The others were American, one a Negro.

They were identified as Marlita Garguillo, 21, the Philippines; Valicenta Pasion, 23, the Philippines; Pamela Wilkening, 22, Lansing, Mich.; Gloria Davy, 23, Dyer, Ind.; Susan Farris, 22, Chicago Patricia Matusek, 21, Chicago; Mary Ann Jordan, 22, Chicago, and Ning Schapelo, 21, Whotesey. Nina Schmale, 21, Wheaton, Ill.

The slayer left the dormitory at about 3 a.m.

General Description of Killer

Miss Amurao, half hysterical, could only be questioned efly. She gave a general description of the killer, noting his blond hair, height about six feet one, and weight about 170 pounds. She said he was wearing a short waist-length jacket.

An FBI official said that the crime was the worst in Chicago annals. Veteran policemen were shocked, they said, by the enor mous quantity of blood around the bodies of the victims. which had not been used as a cell by the killer. One was in a bathroom on the second floor of the house and one in the firstfloor living room. Coroner Toman said: "I went inside and found one girl lying downstairs, apparently strangled. There was a strip of cloth around her neck. She was partly clothed. "Upstairs, seven other girls were lying in two bedrooms and a bathroom.
